Martin Zobel & Soulrise release new „Inspiration EP and launch a crowd funding campaign to raise funds for their upcoming album “Keep Planting Seeds“.

Their last album “Land Of The Free” produced by legendary Fully Fullwood (P. Tosh, B. Marley, Soul Syndicate) was very successful - it even was considered for a Grammy nomination!

Now with this EP Martin Zobel & Soulrise want to prepare the reggae world for their upcoming album “Keep Planting Seeds“ which will be released in October on Irie Vibrations Records.

And in many aspects this upcoming album is even more special than its predecessor - one of them being a very tragic one: In November 2013, while the band was already working on “Keep Planting Seeds“ very unexpectedly their beloved bassie Dublex passed away and the entire project was about to fail.

But then without hesitation Fully Fullwood, being one of the greatest reggae bassplayers of all times offered to fill in and so was not only producing this record but also became a part of the Soulrise Band.

Beyond that another special guest is doing himself the honor of being a part of the production: FOUNDATION's Marcus Urani emphasizes the already earthy sound of Soulrise with his Hammond organ.

The EP includes two tracks from the upcoming album as well as two exclusive, previously unreleased tunes only available on this EP and you can download it here - for FREE:

“Help us making it happen - help us planting seeds - become a part of it!”

However the band is asking, if you like what you hearing on the EP, support their crowd funding campaign and help them finishing the rest of the album. To give you more insight on what it's all about they put together a short but impressive video:
